Nick Simpson, CEO of MSI Group, said, "Since MSI Group's inception in 2002, our ongoing growth and success has been built on the ethical recruitment of professionals into the NHS and other healthcare organisations both here in the UK and overseas.

"For this reason, it always fills me great satisfaction to receive third party recognition that this business model is not only morally sound, but also economically advantageous.

"While some other healthcare recruiters made hay in the UK by capitalising on the NHS's desperation to access skills before mandatory guidelines were introduced around pay, only to see profits tumble when new legislation was brought in, today only the most strategic consultancies are thriving. Our appearance on these lists is testament to the fact that sustainability rests on an ability to operate in a principled fashion on a global scale."
